Inside Pandora's Box

When most people think of Pandora's box, the first thing that comes to mind is a tale of evil and misfortune. This early Greek myth tells the story of the first woman on earth, created by Zeus to seek revenge on Prometheus, who had stolen fire from the gods. Zeus presented Pandora to Prometheus as his wife, and gave her a sealed box, which he instructed her never to open. However, curiosity got the best of her, and she opened the box despite all warnings. When Pandora did this, she released evil into the world. However, what people often discount is that left in the very bottom of the box, after Pandora finally managed to close the lid, was hope. It was with this hope that Pandora and all people in further generations battled the hatred and sin in the world. In naming the yearbook 'Inside Pandora's Box,' we wanted to emphasize this part of the story. As you read through, we'd like the reader to keep this theme in mind. We feel that Buck's Rock is one of the few places that gives us this hope. Our experiences here have given us the strength to pursue our dreams both inside and outside of camp. Ernst Bulova, the founder of Buck's Rock, offered the title "Pandora's Box," and it is the first time in recent memory that one of his suggestions has been adopted. Ernst has said in the past that his ideas are meant to spur further inspiration among the campers when choosing a title for the yearbook, and his suggestion has done exactly this. Thank you, Ernst, for your unfailing inspiration; you have given us more hope than we ever could have wished for.

Sincerely,

Pandora.

Who is Pandora. The name could tell us something. Pan-Dora. The all giving. She was the most beautiful of all women and so the gods had chosen her to be the carrier of presents they had planned for mankind to receive. The gods. Pandora's gods.

Zeus the all powerful with his thunderbolt, his cupbearer Gamymede at his side. Poseidon, brother of Zeus, with his trident, sovereign over the seas and rivers and who could let loose the stormy winds. And Hades, Zeus' other brother, king of the Underworld, with his unhappy wife, Persephone. A trinity who ruled the world. It was Prometheus, though, who formed man and woman in the image of the gods but had to leave them inanimated until Athene, the goddess of wisdom and knowledge, touched the man's hand and gave him life, and with it hers, but had to leave them insensate, without feeling. The gods took pity of them, named Adam and Eve. They decided to send them Pandora, the most beautiful, and gave her the power to make them fully human and complete the work they had started. They also gave her an urn, not a box, and filled it with presents for them. But they, the gods, impractical, illogical and unpredictable as they often were, let Pandora comply with their command but forbade her to open the 'box'.

Pandora was beautiful.

John Keats, the poet, wrote in his "Ode to a Grecian Urn," "Beauty is Truth, Truth Beauty/ That is all ye know and all ye need to know." Alas, it is not. Pandora surpassed in beauty her predecessors, but they were beautiful, too. Eve, the mother of all living; Helen of Troy, wife of Menelaus, King of Sparta. They disobeyed. Eve ate the forbidden apple she had picked from the Tree of Life and gave it to Adam. It was supposed to have given her and Adam, and with them mankind, immortality. They were punished and expelled from the Garden of Eden. Eternal life was not to be theirs: mortality their fate, death their destiny. Helen, to whom Paris, the handsome Prince of Troy, had given the reward in a beauty contest by promising her beauty in the eye of every beholder over Athene's wisdom and Hera's, wife of Zeus, guardianship of house and home. Helen left her husband to follow Paris to Troy. She was the woman whose beauty had launched the thousand Greek ships to recapture her and punish Paris and his kin for abducting her. The ten year Trojan war that ensued ended in the destruction of Troy and brought captivity and slavery to the Trojan women.

When the poet equated truth and beauty, he was mistaken. When Pandora, the most beautiful, out of curiosity opened the 'box' in disobedience to the commands the gods who, in their unpredictability, had imposed on her, out flew the contents, good and evil, the treachery the gods sometimes themselves are guilty of, and loyalty, greed and generosity, sickness and health, fraud and honesty, oppression and freedom, love and hate, prejudice and fairness and all the other contradictory elements. They flew all over the world; they proliferated and multiplied and left mankind with ambiguity and uncertainty, bewildered by inherent contradictions.

The gods of antiquity, who were the gods? They, after defeating the Titans, dethroning Uranus and Cronus, took their seats on Mount Olympus where they were joined by the other gods: Athene, who sprung from Zeus' head, Aphrodite, who emerged from the sea, Hermes, the messenger and herald of the gods, Artemis, the huntress, Apollo and his Muses, Hephaestus, the smith and craftsman, and all the others who had chosen Mount Olympus as their permanent home, like Hera, the wife of Zeus, or temporary domicile. It is told that it had been the gods who peopled the waters with fish, the earth with animals, molded it into plains and mountains, clothed her with grass and trees. They were accompanied, or so the story goes, by nymphs, all pretty and gentle. The Nereids, Poseidon's attendants who inhabit the sea and the rivers; the Oreads, who are at home on the meadows and fields; the Naiads, who give life to springs and fountains and brooks; the Dryads, who live in the forests and trees. But they were doomed.

Moses descended from Mount Sinai, who spoke in the name of the Lord and who called on the Israelites in the desert, the Lord's chosen people: Sheva Yisroel! Hear ye, Israel! Adonai Elohenu, Adonai Eshod! I am your God, your only God. There are no other gods. Israel listened. And so did the world, that became richer and poorer in response to these changes.

What can we do? Where do we stand? We can choose. Always? No, not always. But this summer, at Buck's Rock, you had freedom of choice, limited as all freedom is. But you used it well and it gave you the satisfaction that stems from doing what you have chosen to do and left you with the desire to establish such opportunities in your future. Will you succeed? Not fully. But the yearning for them will stay with you wherever you go. Freedom can be a mirage, a fata morgana that slips away from you when you thought you had it in your hands. Should you abandon the effort? No, not by any means. You didn't this summer. You used the choices that were yours as much as your abilities and circumstances permitted. May you continue along the road you walked this summer. It may not be "The Road to Mandalay," but it is your road that is paved with your hopes and desires, your beliefs and expectations, with your wishes and aspirations. It is not hemmed in by divine revelations that demand strict compliance. It is an open road. The road of discovery and inventions, exploration and interpretation ever subject to change. It might be the road of the future. It might be your road. I have seen it by your visits, by the titles of the books you borrowed. May you as successfully pursue it as you did all summer. Stuck to the bottom of Pandora's 'Box', almost overlooked, was Hope. For you, it means more than that. It was confidence, the self-confidence that you have added to by what you did this summer. May you continue to do so.

The gods are gone and with them the nymphs who had done so much to brighten life on earth. But there are the men and women who can fill the places they had to relinquish. They are the gods of the future. Your future. The future you have entered. On your way, may you not suffer too grievously from the ills and evils that were in Pandora's 'Box', but enjoy the blessings it contained. And, to quote W.B. Yeats,

Pluck till time
And times are done
The silver apples of the moon
The golden apples of the sun.

"Build Me Up, Batik Shop"

(sung to the tune of "Build me Up Buttercup")

Why do you build the wax up, batiking camper,
 Just to crack it up (crack it up)
 And not agitate.
 Then worst of all, you never call set when you say you will (say you will),
 But we love you still!
 We need you (we need you)
 More than anyone darling, you know that we have from the start.
 So wax me up, batiking camper, don't let me down.

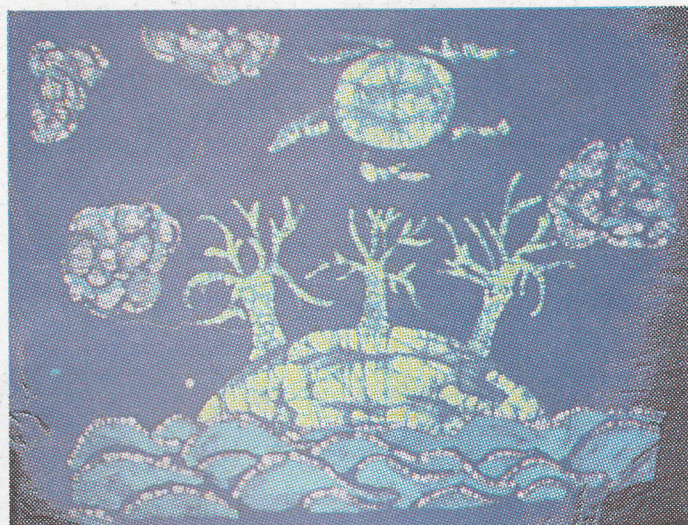

The shop opens at nine, if you hear the gong chime,
 But it's late. It let me down again. (ba da da da)
 The kids are on time, waiting patiently to dye,
 But it's wet. They'll have to come back again. (hey hey hey)
 Baby, baby try to find (your project)
 It's in the back of the cabinet. (hey hey hey)
 I'll be at the door waiting for you. (ooh ooh ooh)

Why do you build the wax up, batiking camper,
 Just to crack it up (crack it up)
 And not agitate.
 Then worst of all, you never call set when you say you will (say you will),
 But we love you still!

We need you (we need you)
More than anyone darling, you know that we have from the start.
So wax me up, batiking camper, don't let me down.

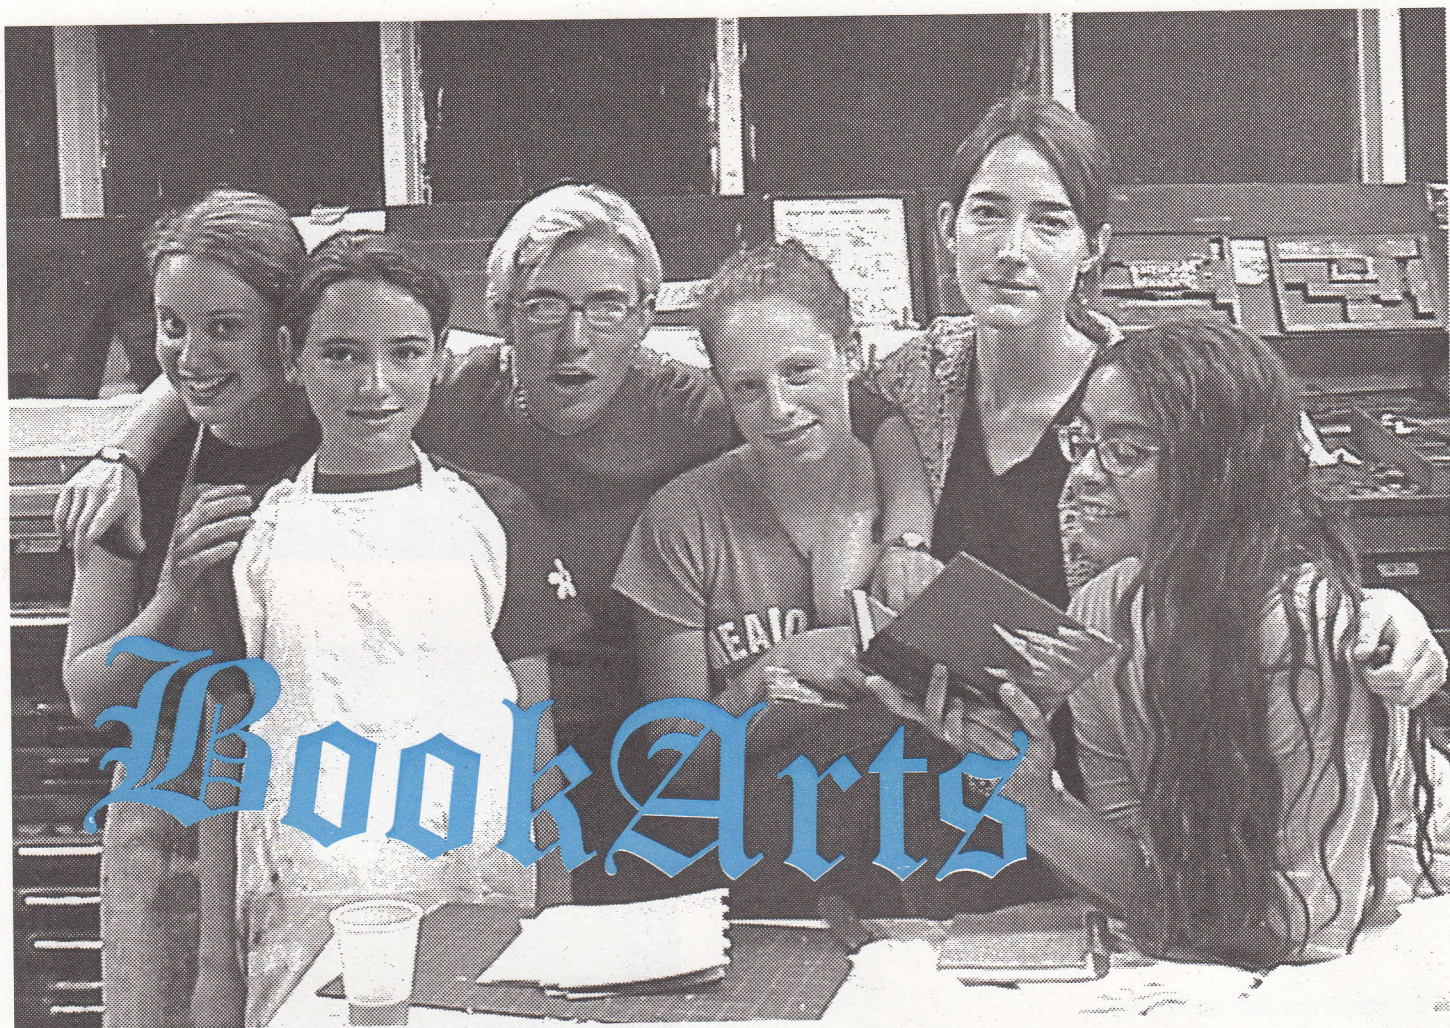

Can't dye after five or eleven a.m.
It's too late, but you can do a silk scarf. (ba da da da)
This year you can try some leather or wood to dye.
It's so cool! Don't you want to start? (hey hey hey)
Baby, baby, try to find (an idea)
Look at some magazines over here. (hey hey hey)
I'll be at the sink waiting for you. (ooh ooh ooh)

Why do you build the wax up, batiking camper,
Just to crack it up (crack it up)
And not agitate.
Then worst of all, you never call set when you say you will (say you will),
But we love you still!
We need you (we need you)
More than anyone darling, you know that we have from the start.
So wax me up, batiking camper, don't let me down.

This summer, the book artists of Buck's Rock created new definitions of book forms and took this ancient artform to new and limitless horizons! We hand-stitched and bound an entire multi-media library of books that together would make any book-lover proud. We incorporated text printed on our letterpress and Japanese paper made from Mulberry bark which we boiled, pounded and strained until we'd created beautifully strong sheets of paper.

Thanks to all the energy and laughs in the the shop this summer. Whoever said book artists can't also boogie?

We are live from the Clay Shop hearing the campers' frequently asked questions and the staffs' responses. Join us for this interesting, in depth, and crazy look into the dirtiest shop on camp.

Q: What does 'bisque' mean?

Adam: I built a boat in two months, and sailed it down the Mississippi. When we arrived in Louisiana, there were UFOs.

Amanda: I love children so I'm going to be a veterinarian.

Tamara: It means: "Somebody go wake up Josh!"

Q: Is this centered yet?

Adam: You would look pretty funny eating corn with missing teeth...

Chris: Amanda's pots are too thick.

Emily B: I can not eat any more sugar...

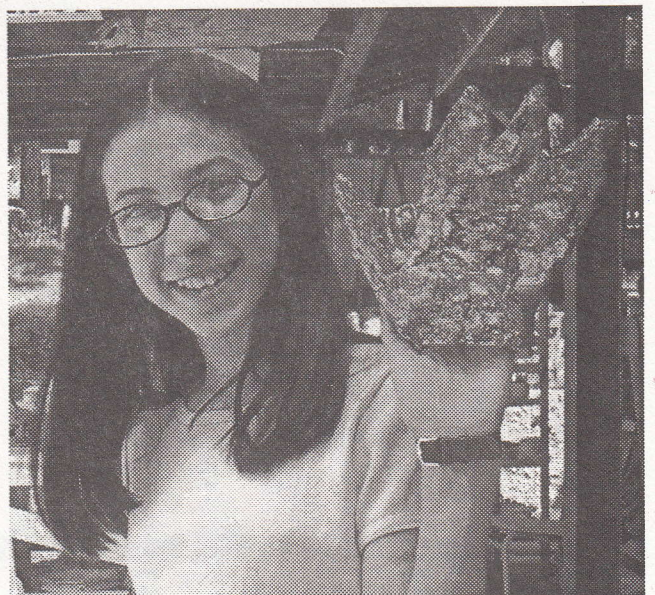

Q: When do I know that it's time to glaze?

Amanda: I can throw taller pots than Chris.

Sarah: My director yelled at me for bringing dust into the theatre.

Adam: Easy, skeeze, you know how you get.

Emily M: RAKU IT!!!

Q: Is fire supposed to be shooting out the side of the kiln?

Amanda: (seagull screech)

Emily M: I love the way it feels. I just HAVE to put my hands in it!

Chris: It's okay, I used to ride horses. I lived in Dallas.

Tamara: Bob Marley says, "We must be luv hya."

Q: Can we have icy pops?

Amanda: Yo, you are bugging.

Emily B: No throwing until we CLEEEEN this place.

Josh: You're SO fired.

Q: Why is this clay red?

Josh: Do not make me run; I'm full of chocolate!

Emily M: COOLNESS

Sarah: OhcrapIhaverehearsalBYE!

Q: What's WRONG with you people?!

Emily B: I need a holiday...

Adam: I think I am going to need hip surgery.

Tamara: You know, we haven't listened to reggae in 24 hours...

The following is a brief description of the usual goings-on in the Computer Shop. What is written here may shock you- even terrify you. But chances are, it won't. We do not guarantee the validity of this report in any way, shape or flavor. That said, we present to you: "A Usual Day in the Computer Shop."

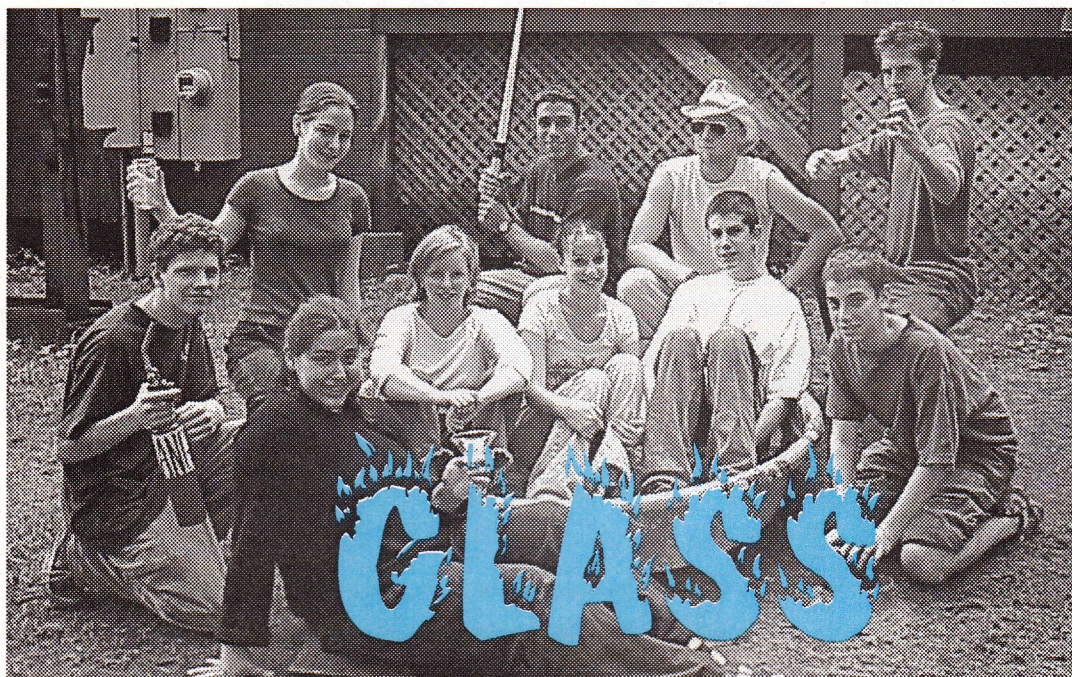

- 08:30 Crowd gathers outside the Computer Shop. Campers eagerly await their chance to check their e-mail.
- 09:00 Computer Shop opens. Ian rushes inside and fends off the horde of campers until they are organized enough to let into the shop.
- 09:10 Simon, Nat and JP arrive.
- 09:15 Simon says, "Where's Max?"
- 09:16 Crickets chirp in the distance.
- 09:17 Simon mutters, "Dammit."
- 09:30 Max & Max wake up.
- 09:45 Nose noise parade marches around the Computer Shop.
- 09:59 Max Stein and Max Miller enter the Computer Shop. Max Miller proceeds to sneeze rampantly on objects.
- 10:00 Comp H&T begins. Ian and Nat discuss "interesting things" while Simon gets bitten by nasty insects.
- 10:05 Simon blinks.

COMPUTER

- 10:30 People realize just where they are and that it's too late to leave H&T, so they pretend to have listened for the past 30 minutes and ask irrelevant questions.
- 11:00 Comp H&T ends, and the Computer Shop staff return to the shop. Max Miller "loses his way" and finds himself in the Video Shop.
- 11:05 Jeffrey tells Max Miller to return to his own shop.
- 11:30 Ethan Feldman's game "Time Warrior" gives 2.5 campers seizures and causes many others to mindlessly recite the second level's theme song.
- 12:00 Lunch gong rings. People are forced out of the shop against their will as the staff goes to lunch.
- 13:15 JP buys the Canteen's entire supply of Tic-Tacs and eats it - whole.
- 14:00 Nat & Ian open Computer Shop. A mighty cheer rises up among the campers as thousands rush in to ask if they can check their e-mail.
- 14:30 Max Miller destroys the e-mail machine whilst eating a Pikachu. "It's for the best," he reasons.
- 14:35 Simon fixes the e-mail machine. Max is thwarted. Millions cheer.
- 14:58 Max Stein says, "What?"
- 14:59 Simon blinks.
- 15:00 Max Miller force feeds random campers a substance called "Jerky." Once again, he declares: "It's for the best!"
- 15:05 Campers vomit. Max is thwarted. Millions cheer.
- 15:06 Simon blinks.
- 16:07 JP spends time on the oldest computer in the shop and accomplishes nothing whatsoever. Fly buzzes around Simon's head.
- 16:08 Fly is terminated.
- 16:52 JP threatens to destroy Fed-Ex. Vegetarians threaten to destroy Max Miller. Max Miller laughs maniacally.
- 16:53 Vegetarians maim Max. Max is thwarted. Millions cheer.
- 17:00 Kee works on Epion 2. Max Miller complains about the lack of Josh Leitner. JP curses out Fed-Ex.
- 17:14 Server crashes.
- 17:18 Simon fixes the server. Nat and Ian compliment Simon's computing prowess.
- 17:19 Simon blinks.
- 18:00 Shop closes.

But seriously.. these are not actually the only activities that occur at the shop. Apart from e-mail, there are classes on various programming languages including C, C++, and Perl. A number of campers have created games with "The Games Factory." Electronics classes teach campers the fundamentals about how computers work. Also, we have a vast number of 3D modelling programs such as Bryce, Poser and LightWave.

At first it was hot,
We were in the pool a lot.
Then it started to rain,
It drove us insane!

We made marbles and bubbles galore,
Then handkerchief bowls were made more and more.
Goblet fever also seemed to strike,
It made Luigi ride away on his bike.

Crowds gathered to watch our demo nights,
Sometimes Justin would blow, blinded by camera lights.
Usually our pieces would turn out fine,
But Angus was always playing that cursed Sublime.

We did lamp working which Jill leads,
All the campers have fun while making beads.
Torches burned hot for all to see,
With help from Jessi, Sonya, and the CITs.

Thursdays at our shops were a blast!
Solid glass objects were cast.
Most campers did hands or feet,
They all came out really neat.

After casting one day, we craved curry,
So we drove to India Kitchen in a hurry.
Where we ate rice that was piled sky high
And the waiter gave Scott the evil eye.

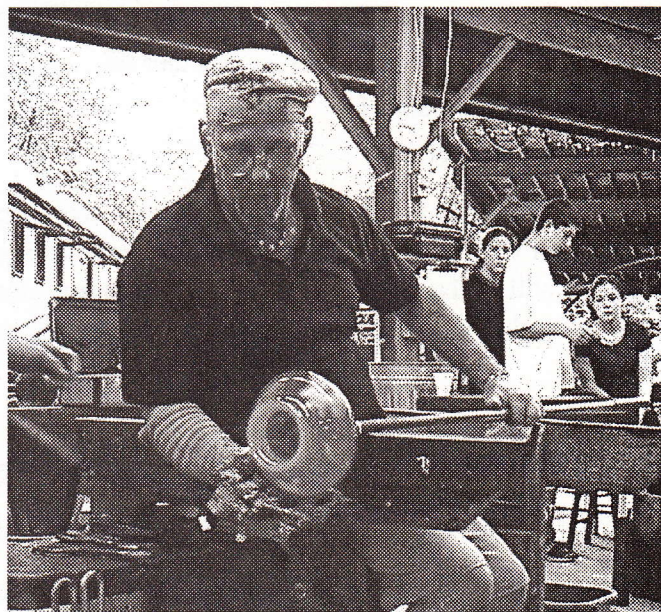

On our first session trip
We saw glass that made us flip.
Then merrily we went
To Jessi's favorite; the Falls of Kent.

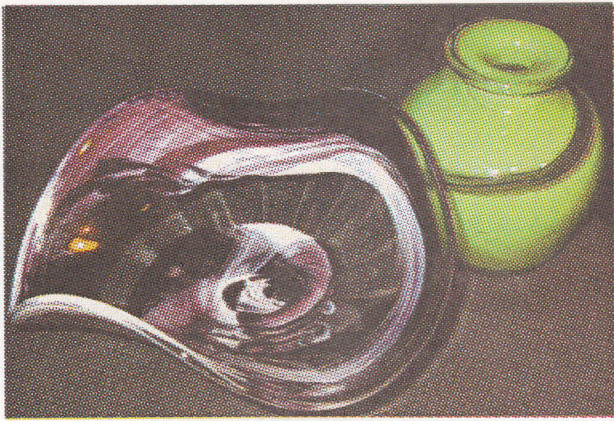

Even though the shop ran out of gas,
The company came and saved our @$$.
So we kept our hopes going,
While watching videos of Masters glass blowing.

Our second session trip to Fellerman and Raabe's
Showed us that Glass is much more than a hobby.
Fellerman was the one that on Mondays would come
And do demos ... well, some.

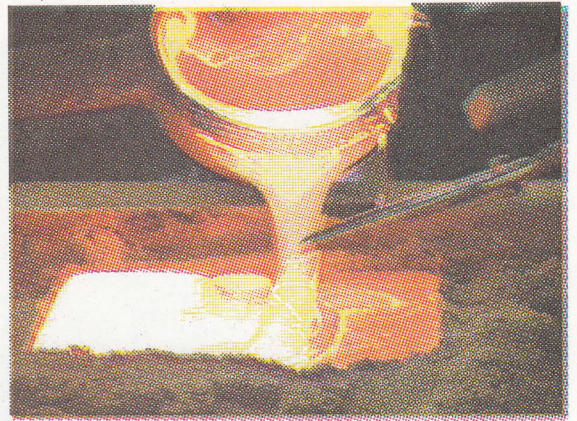

We blew glass every day,
How we wish we could stay.
Getting burned is a bummer.
But... we'll see you next summer!

To all the Cows,

Who lost the great battle against "Did someone say McDonald's? It's Mactime, have you got the urge?" We at the Leather Shop would like to take a minute to show our appreciation. You did not die in vain; your sacrifice has helped us here at Buck's Rock Camp to create some of the latest fashion accessories.

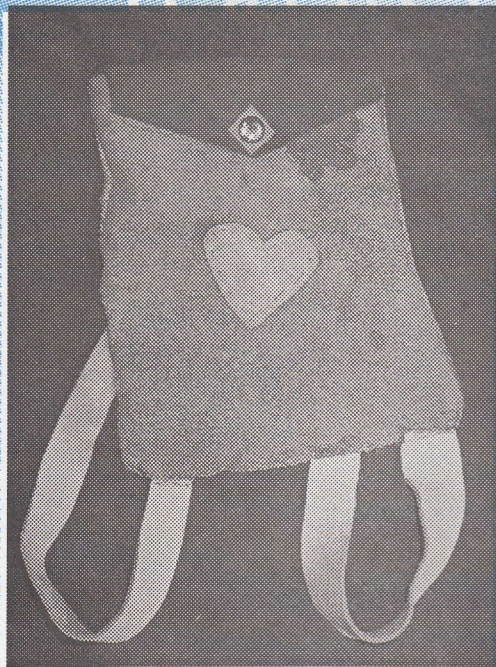

So your spirit lives on through belts, wallets, hacky sacks, bags, sandals, moccasins and leather jewelry. So the beauty of these items shall prevail on forever with our campers.

Also, you help us to get in touch with our animal instincts.

Plus you smell and feel great.

So thank you from the bottom of our Big Macs.

Yours faithfully,

METALS

In a big, big shop, far, far away,
 Kids make jewelry every day!
 Anklets, bracelets, cufflinks and rings,
 Shrinky-dinks, casting, and enameling.
 Shin Shin loves perfection, from labels to cleanliness,
 Sara's calm when things go wrong,
 And Sarah's the Irish one who likes to have FUN!!!
 Anne masters the skill of self mutilation (by whacking herself against the benches).
 Michelle's the most extroverted, and Amie's our guitar-swinging-singing gal.
 Our CITs: (aaaaah) Kate, never has a problem,
 And Adam likes to do the highland fling (even though he's fully American).

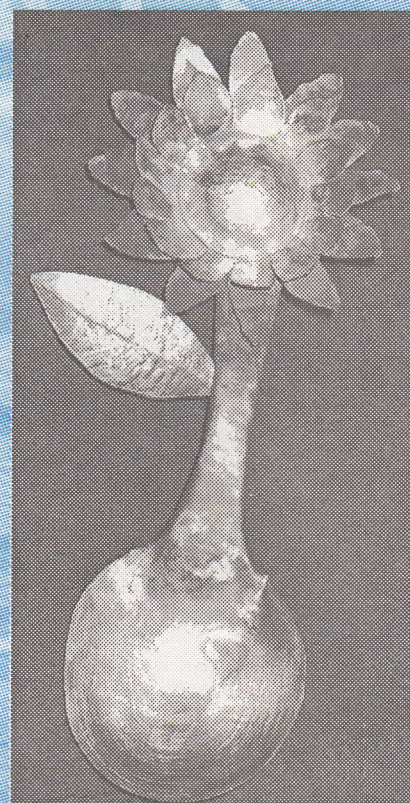

So here at the metals shop, we care about the joyful things in life: steel tweezers in the pickle; metal-sniffing; bezels that fry or are sanded too low; and soldering at the power outlet. And don't forget ... KEEP FILING!!!!

A Day at the Art Shop

The art shop opens and Stefanie "Guess what I did last night" Berks arrives on time and brushes her teeth in the sink, as does Scott "I don't understand ::blink, blink::" Goodman. The staff walk around the shop helping campers with their paintings and drawings. Despite her fatigue, Stef manages to tell Jenny "I need cheese; cheers" Bartko all about her day off. Just as Jenny is about to respond to Stef's story, Jesse "young girls love me" Smolover interrupts and asks Jenny to sell one camper a sketchbook and stretch a canvas for another. Meanwhile, Mike "I'm not angry, I'm just scary" Ajerman is trying not to seem exasperated or impatient as he talks to a camper about her plans to airbrush a painting. Nick "I didn't sink the canoe" Cheeseman is a newbie in the art shop, but he still does a good job helping the campers. In no time it's noon and the two CITs (Scott and Jenny), who are working at the time, and the JCs (Stef and Jesse) rush to clean up so they can go to lunch.

Scott comes back to paint that afternoon. The two CITs working then are Hi-D "But Death Metal isn't evil" Katz and Beth "On a wagon bound to market" Wolfson. Stef orders Beth and Hi-D to clean up, while the rest of the staff are busy helping campers. When Jesse's Fenix TX CD is finished playing, Hi-D pounces and yells "My turn!" Chris steps in, however, and calmly explains to Hi-D that he hasn't had one of his CDs played in three days. Chris and Hi-D negotiate. In the meantime, Stef yells at someone for sitting in her chair, conveniently labeled "Stefanie's chair." Stef makes the comparison that, in the art shop family, Ellen "I could really use a chocolate-covered espresso bean" Goodwin is the Mommy. Ellen would rather be known as the Auntie or Sister, however. Chris jumps up when the gong rings, announcing that he's going to get snack. Hi-D tells Chris not to get any cookies because she's "getting fat," but he gets cookies anyway and Hi-D has one. When it's Beth's turn to choose the next selection of music, Beth chooses "Hair" (the original Broadway cast). Stefanie cheers and Jesse cringes. The rest of the staff is indifferent and Beth pays no heed to Jesse's cries of "Please, no!" A camper complains that he doesn't want to make a drawing IN COLOR before he can start his painting. Rick "the ladies dig my chest hair" Price explains that the shop encourages campers to do so in order to make a commitment to the painting and show that they're serious about it and are willing to put the time in to finish the painting. At 5:45, Stef flicks the lights on and off and yells, "Clean up!" The campers clean up and clear out, and the staff finish cleaning up and then close the shop before heading off for dinner.

At the PASS, the place with the stuff, we have been striving to find the cure to amnesia. Unfortunately, we do keep forgetting our task. All we do know is that the room with the bright light is overflowing with marvelous things such as Nick-o-lodeon Slime (one hell of a trendy green) and Radioactive Creamsicle (one funky monkey spiffy orange). In the background we hear a small child questioning when his "Ton Fun" screen will be dry. Oh no!!!! Stop the vandal with the Violin! He is pilfering our fridge! For those of you who have not passed and/or taken fridge 101, this is a bad thing. In our fridge, we store odd things such as Mountain Dew, Coke, Pepsi, Root Beer, Birch Beer, Orange Soda, Ginger-ale, vanilla yogurt, strawberry yogurt, water, Surge, BOLOGNA, and cancer. The children flock to our shop to make their clothing glow in the dark! In the foreground, we see Jason stomping his two colored sunset stamp. In the background, Jen is chewing on Arabic Gum. As we hear the hum of the power hose cease, Jared walks out of a cloud of mist with a screen that contains the image of a giant king of hearts. Although Madeline isn't in the shop at the moment, I (3rd person omniscient) am sure she could be found in line for registration. Do not fret for her boredom. She is keeping herself quite busy by talking about what everyone else did last night. The Kate, AKA The Yoda Jedi Master, is constantly on the run. She is forced to hide from the voice of Buck's Rock.....89.1FM. Something now enters through the side door. It might be a hedgehog or a rooster. Something is hanging out of its mouth. Either a spoon or a toothbrush. On a good day, maybe even both. He is mumbling something about the lady farmer. Oh, it's Nick! His pockets are filled with cereal boxes that will one day turn into envelopes and travel the world. When the parents leave home, Nick and Jason frolic around the Henna Shop; now it is time to clear out all of the tables and chairs for the hack circle. Jen is forced to stop printing figures on liquid Mountain Dew to get in the game. Everyone knows the rules: no swearing, no apologizing, and if a camper is hurt and/or killed the game must end for a brief period of time. Unfortunately, none of us can concentrate. We are all dreaming of the day when our favorite supermarket....ooops...I meant super hero arrives. To be continued.....

CHEMICAL BRAINWASH

1968— Chemical Bath meet September 1968 at the Jefferson Airplane concert, where they saw each other through a looking glass. After discovering their common interests in photography and music, they form their first band, The Light Factory.

May 1971— After a string of hits, "Agitation," "Kaleidoscope," "Dektol," "Rainbows," "Selenium," "Clover," from their album, Liquid Light, the band dissolves to experiment with photo.

Nov. 1975— All five members release solo albums, which immediately fail— Derrick's country album, Stop Bath and Tears- Live at the Wisconsin County Jail; Jesse's disco album, Starfilter Explosion; Sara's folk album, Dust Off My Soul; David's joint project with Brian Eno, Experimental Cyanotype #4: Poisonless Pentax; and Erica's punk album, Burned and Dodged. The band sinks into a deep depression and resumes taking pictures.

1979— After breathing in too many darkroom fumes due to poor ventilation, Jesse collapses at Studio 54 and vomits on Andy Warhol. Derrick realizes he doesn't even like his trailer or dog, and Sara ends her relationship with Simon and Garfunkel. Erica, after escaping a cult and ditching L.A., runs into David at CBGB's in NYC, where she dissuades him from joining Devo. The two decide to rejoin the band members.

1983— Ernst Records releases the album In a World Without Fix by newly-formed Chemical Bath. Its poppy songs include "I Wanna Take Your Picture," "Like a Camera," and "My Eyes are Red for You."

1984— Two months into the world tour Erica overdoses on fixer because she did not wear gloves. The tour falls apart in her absence because no one insures that the tongs are not mixed. The band's roadies, Ari, Meredith, and Ori and their makeup artists Gabe and Ruby walk out on the band after David becomes a control freak and Jesse continuously requests massages. The world tour is canceled.

requests massages. The world tour is canceled.

1991—After seven years working as photographers and solo artists, all five members reunite at a concert to benefit the muting of Christina Aguilera, where they decide to hire Ben Folit-

Weinberg as their manager. They tour with their new punk album Give Me a Camera or Give Me Death, which hit the charts with the songs “Developer is Good Food,” “Black and White,” and “Chemical Warfare.” Chemical Bath’s new fame lands them groupies such as Toby, Mollie, Tory, Hedley, Laurel, and Emma.

1996— Five years and a few albums later, the band takes a break to give Jesse time to recover from his horrific face lift. The remainder of the band gets lost in their tour van, where they are found two years later hunting for the perfect squeegee in New Milford, CT.

2000— The band is reunited at Buck’s Rock Camp, where they very secretly continue to work on their new album, while teaching photography to future rock stars. Their biography, Go with the Photoflo, is released. It reveals their ages to be in the late 40s, and states that they owe their youthful appearance to Jesse’s excellent surgeon. Chemical Bath, along with their groupies and roadies, continues to rock out.

Sculpture

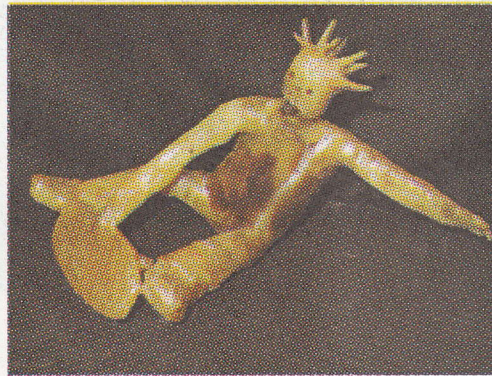

I had a dream, and when I awoke I could see with my heart; sculpture was everywhere. Sculpture is the glue that binds us together. It penetrates us, controls us and also obeys our commands. Sculpture was my hands, sculpture was love, and sculpture was life.

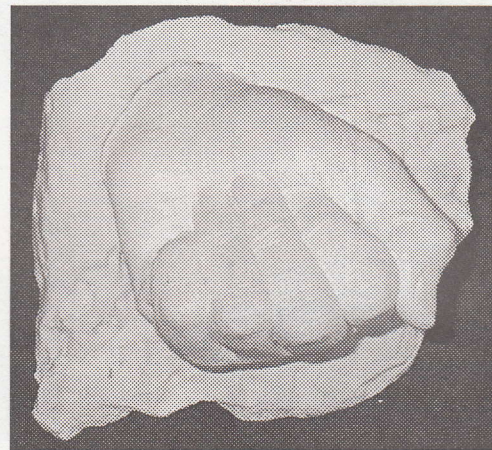

The children of Kahn will rise up singing.

All of the counselors here at camp help the campers in creating their projects. Sometimes the sewing counselors help in such a way that they become the project! And when they do...

Pam Dicke becomes Super Fabric!

She is the backbone of the shop. (She shows us 'right' from 'wrong'.)

Leona Butchart becomes The Magnificent Pattern!

She gets things started. (She keeps us on the straight grain and arrows.)

Rhona Scott becomes The Astronomical Embroidery Machine!

She enhances what she does. (And she makes our lives colorful.)

Sharon Mason becomes The Stupendous Zipper!

She pulls us together. (She keeps life interesting with her 'zips'.)

Pam Nurse becomes The Fantastic Thread!

She keeps us in stitches.

Annie Brauer becomes The Excellent Pins!

She holds things together. ("Because otherwise we'd all fall apart," and because she always gets to the point of things.)

Lindsay Greenbaum becomes Terrific Trims!

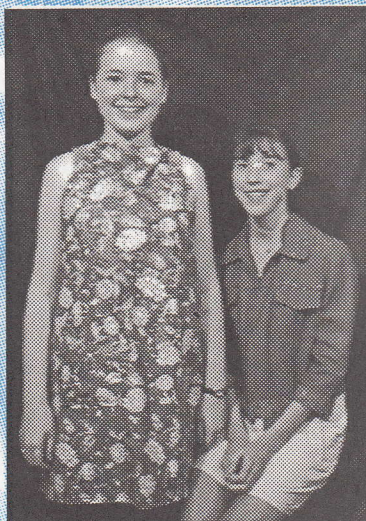

She makes a great addition wherever she is.

All of these together make the greatest sewing shop (or project) there could ever be!!!

It was a normal afternoon at the weaving shop. The campers, as always, worked diligently on their belts, bracelets, tapestries, scarves, blankets, etc., staying calm and quiet as they worked happily. The counselors, trying unsuccessfully to entertain themselves by guessing the time, were somewhat content as well.

Then it was time for snack, which always caused chaos, but on this particular day snack caused more insanity than sugar in both solid lump and colored liquid form usually do. For on that day, for the first time anyone could remember, there were extra plastic cups.

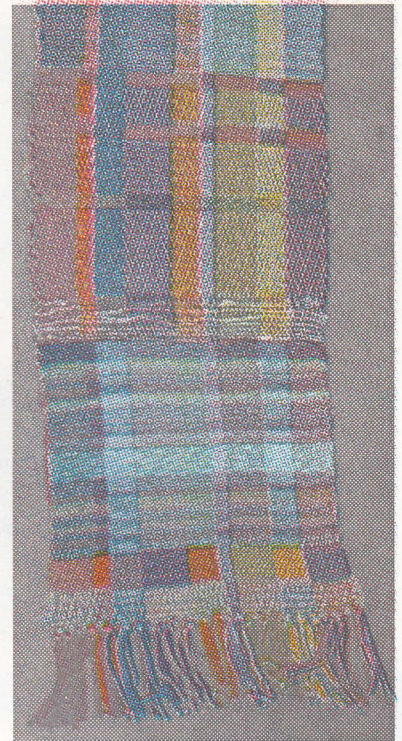

What could be done with these extra cups? Should we save them for tomorrow? No. Get more juice to fill them? No. Make hats out of them? Yes!

So the campers got to work making hats. The first few were very simple: shredded cup tied to the wearer's head. Then they got more complicated. The ends of cups were hooked together to form designs, and string and paint markers were used to decorate the cups. More than one cup was used for each hat, either stacked on top of each other or side by side.

About an hour later the hats lost their charm. One by one campers and counselors took their hats off, and soon they were all on the shelf where the cone people are kept. The cone people, being mute, could not protest to wearing hats, and, being motionless, could not take them off. (But they're alive, remember; cone people are people too.) So the hats remained on the cone people, a reminder of our temporary insanity, and normal life at the weaving shop resumed.

If Pandora's Box were to be made today, it would be made in the wood shop!

This year, the wood shop staff have been lovingly aiding campers in a wide spectrum of Wood projects. Chess Boards, Guitars (oh my God not another Guitar!), Bowls & Bongo Drums were just the tip of the project iceberg.

The staff this year were an international team of wood genius. What follows is an account of their talents and personality traits:

Warren "Giddy up" Kirsten is a yo-yo spinnin' hackysack kickin' South African dude. As he likes to remind people, statistics prove that he was the #1 male counselor on camp. As a result of this he has created the perfect catalogue pose and spends the majority of his time outside the wood shop modeling with "Chicks dig guys who..." but little does he know that chicks don't always carry a shovel.

Rob "Don't mess it up" Allison is the heart maker and breaker of the wood shop. He is often seen offering the ladies a bowl in exchange for a date. He is not yet at one with the power tools, which is apparent when you see his varying "scared pouting faces." As well as being a super dooper wood worker, he is also an easy target for a water bomb booby-trap!

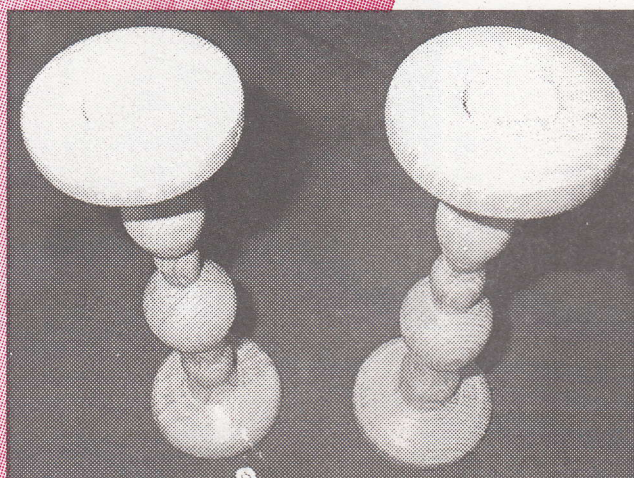

Alex "What do you want" Roskin likes to welcome campers into the shop with his scowling face. If he is not in the wood shop, you can always find him down at the hardware store, spending hours smelling wood, licking nails, stroking sandpaper and stalking table saws. His favorite pastime is making guitars. You can often see him joyously sanding a guitar body with a twinkle in his eye.

Chris "I want to ride my bicycle" Goodson is a man who has mastered the art of relaxation in the wood shop. He never arrives late and enjoys passing on his work to innocent by-standers. Chris is officially the Del Boy of Buck's Rock due to the dodgy deals he strikes up with counselors from other shops. He guarantees them a high quality plate for something of as high quality in return. Little do these poor, unsuspecting, trusting counselors know that his plates are mass produced in Taiwan from Economy Plywood.

Evelyn "You're not my type" Farrell is the only member of the wood shop who can naturally bear children. She is often told by other members of staff that "Guys dig chicks who dig wood." With this in mind, Evelyn has become a wood worshipper. On lazy days, Evelyn likes to partake in the game "See who can throw little Evelyn the farthest!" We are hoping it will be part of the sports program next year. Some people consider Evelyn the hardest working member of the team, proving the point the IT TAKES A WOMAN TO DO A MAN'S JOB!!

Week 1: What a great Staff! There are five of us. We can all sort of sew. We all speak English fairly well. Most of us have been here before. We can all walk! (For now...)

Week 2: Look at us go. We already finished the first show.

We're on top of the second. We're under budget. We have an espresso machine in the shop. We rock!

Week 3: The ceiling is leaking, but thanks to the rain we got an extra night to finish the costumes for Skin of our Teeth. Wiley says the rain will last all night. She can feel it in her ankle. Kate M. has to move out of her room; there is fuzzy green stuff growing on the walls.

Week 4: We all watch HAIR

on video. Kate G. declares "This is not at all what the sixties was like. And we never put flares in our pants!" We all watch Woodstock. Kate M. wonders how popular music got from Crosby, Stills and Nash to 'N Sync. Tanya wonders what this hippy lifestyle is all about.

Week 5: We clean up from Swing Dance. We clean up from Swing Dance. We clean up from Swing Dance. We clean up from Swing Dance. We realize we need to build 25 Elizabethan costumes for Taming of the Shrew... We pick up some fresh ground espresso beans.

Week 6: We go to Joann fabrics. Every night. We stay till closing. They call us by our first names when we walk in the door. George asks to watch South Park. We say no. It rains some more. We don't notice because we never leave the shop.

Week 7: We attempt to catch up on the days off we've missed so far this summer. But Photo has "Rock Star Night". The counselors from Sculpture want to sign out some women's dresses... again? Some campers from Video are remaking Night of the Living Dead.. We make cappuccinos. Nastia likes hers with 5 sugars.

Week 8: What a great Staff! There are still 5 of us. We can all sew. We all speak English really good! We can all walk once again!

In the beginning of Buck's Rock there was chaos and silence. In the midst of the silence a muse arrived with a message from Lord Ernst. The message was "Music is our savior and the beauty of humanity was best carried out and reflected by harmonious jubilant vibration."

Through the word of Lord Ernst, the muse elected four wise people to teach the beauty of sound. The four wise people* spread their unique gift of music to all willing children of the Rock. And there was much rejoicing. And it was good.

The four wise people worked diligently every day teaching music to the children of Rock, but by the seventh day they had all grown weary and could no longer play guitar. The wise people trekked to the top of Mt. Bulova to talk to Lord Ernst. When they reached the top of Mt. Bulova, tired from the long trek, they confronted Lord Ernst with their problem. Ivan went to speak first, but as he opened his mouth Ernst raised his hand slowly to silence the tired wise person. Lord Ernst said, in a very solemn tone, "I know why you are here. I have seen your fingers bleed. I propose a compromise. You will continue to play, but you will play simple progressions and sit in cushy batik chairs."

After consideration, the wise people agreed and returned to the porch with news of the compromise labeled "Guitar Snack." Since this day there has been much rejoicing and merriment on the porch. The four wise people continue the tradition of Snack on Saturdays with children of the Rock. They rejoice with REM, Pink Floyd and others. Lord Ernst now sits happily on top of Mt. Bulova and looks down upon the love and joy for which he built a haven.

Special thanks to all children of the Rock who graced us with their presence, and Lord Ernst who made it so.

INTERIOR: day. The Actor's Studio. It's mid afternoon on the day before a show, and the LSD crew is nowhere to be found. There are no lights hung, no sound gear patched. Onstage, the actors are merrily rehearsing, blind to the lack of technical support that is going on around them.

INTERIOR: night. The Actor's Studio. Put-to-bed. Campers are snuggling down for the night, counselors are at snack chatting, and ROB KUROPATWA is hunting burnt out light bulbs and immorally parked cars while reviewing last friday's staff meeting attendance, trying to figure out why none of the LSD staff was there. In the theatre, the LSD crew is showing its first signs of arrival...

Enter GIB in trench coat and shoulder bag. He says nothing to anybody and immediately finds the longest cable in the entire theatre to coil.

Enter ZOE, wearing a scrap of T-shirt and sandals. She starts giving everybody instructions and mocks DAVE as much as possible.

Enter DAVE. He comes in, looks around, becomes confused and goes off to find JEN LANGTON.

Enter STEPHEN via the Infirmary. He walks straight to the tech table and begins cursing the rotten dimmers we've rented.

Enter CLANCY, quietly. He pokes about directly beneath the set crew's feet looking for food, sleep and lovin'.

Enter SAM. He takes stock of the situation and begins rambling about woofers, faders, subs, and sub sub subs. The rest of the crew smiles and nods as they pretend to understand what he's talking about. He also hollers GIB'S name a lot.

Enter ERIC. He says nothing, finds the heaviest piece of equipment we own, and moves it all over while singing old show tunes.

Enter JEFF. He's just come from New York. He walks in, then walks out to go play softball.

Enter GINA, from above, on a trapeze.

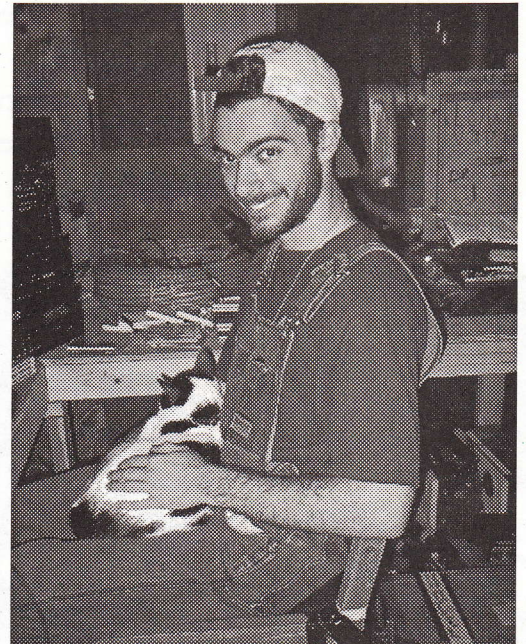

Enter VIDEO, 15 minutes after the scheduled start time. They need 3 extension cords, a sound feed, a place to set up and an extra intermission to change tapes.

Enter HEDLEY and RICE, intertwined, late. They hang around SAM, act very professional, and disappear midway through a project.

Enter HILARIE, RACHEL, CARYN, and JUSTIN. They're running the dimmer board for this show. And the next one. And the next one...

Ten minutes later, the crew breaks planning to reconvene at 2 am tomorrow. Another day of hard work in LSD...

While I was out and about on my Saturday morning run, I passed by a shed that was full of music. It was the music shed. It was 9:15, and the orchestra was just beginning to tune to an A. When I returned from my run at about 11:15, the jazz band had taken over, and was finishing some swingin' tunes. I ate some lunch while watching the vocal jazz group work on their pr-oh-ject for the swing dance, and many of them stayed to sing with the chorus that arrived at 1:00. When I left for my second run of the day, the jazz improv group argued that they needed use of the amps, and although they were saw-ry, the string ensemble was forced to relocate to the art porch, and a private lesson was sent to the voice shed. By the time I had returned for my midday power-up snack, the guitarists were all on the porch, rocking out at guitar snack. Soon after, a camper ran up to the new practice shed to practice on the piano. At 4:30, I relaxed on the lawn and learned a little bit about music history and theory (H and T), and then I hit the showers because I was filthy from all of my training. I ate some dinner (pah-sta, of course) before I went to listen to the ah cappella and mah-drigals groups rehearse. The pit orchestra for the musicals met right afterwards. Then I took the bottle of water that I had collected from the leaky ceiling and saved it to use on my run the next morning.

Sounds like they've been keeping pretty busy up in the music shed, eh?

Radio... We Will Not Be Silenced!

Hi, this is Josh Benjamin. I have been sitting outside since 8:30 waiting to get in. Right now, it's about 9:10, and up next I have BB MAK with Back Here Baby.

Hey, this is Jon Ross and you're listening to WBBC Buck's Rock Radio, broadcasting live at a quarter of a watt. Up next we have some Korn for you. This is Twist.

Hey, this is Jeremy Klopman here on WBBC Buck's Rock Radio, if you don't like what we were playing, come down and play something better. Now I have got some more Sublime. What a big surprise!

Hi, this is Alex Nahoum, and I'm here with Dan the ghost... YAR! And up next we have Denial by Sevendust, dedicated to you, Jeremy.

Ok, hi. This is Daniel Fried on WBBC Buck's Rock Radio. Um... up next is a song from the Ten Things I Hate About You soundtrack. I actually don't know what it is, and it has a popish quality, but it has a unique blend of techno sounds.

Um... ha ha... this is Jesper, and up next we're gonna play an hour of metal up your ass. Ha ha. Here's Sonata Arctica.

Um, hey? Uhhhh this is Kyle, and up next... uhh... now we're gonna have a little Weird Al. This isn't the best song, and I don't really like it that much, but it's ok.

Hi, this is Greg Smith. Umm... this next song is from the Austin Powers soundtrack. Um... I don't remember the name, but here it is. Hope you like it.

Hey, heehee, this is RAM radio. Heehee. With Rachel, Amanda, and Marissa. Haha, heehee. Up next is Presidents with Video Killed the Radio Star.

Hey, this is Ali and you're listening to the Ali Millard show! Right now I'm turning Geoff's microphone off. Ya know why? Cuz this is the Ali Millard show! Up next we have some music, which you won't be able to hear because I won't stop talking!

Hey, this is Alex Weprin here to talk sports for the hour. After the scores, I will teach all our listeners who Mark McGuire is!

Hey, this is Liz your lovely radio JC, and you're listening to WBBC, the voice of Buck's Rock. Now we're gonna play Buck Rocks! Beat Dub!!!

Hey! Bing, bing. This is Geoff G on Buck's Rock alternative radio... and woo! Come down to radio. Bing, bing! We're open for seven hours every day. Bing, bing. Up next is Limp Bizkit with Faith. Because you gotta have FAAAAAIIIII-ITTTTTTHHHHH!!! Bing, Bing!

The Regulars: Geoff "Bing, Bing, Wool!" G. (Head of Shop), Liz "The Naked Viking" Nesoff (JC),

Alex "This is Sean Connery, Ah Yes" Weprin (CIT), Jesper "That's metal" Strömlad (CIT), studio 59

The summer of 2000 has seen some significant improvements for Studio 59, not the least of which is the addition of a third staff member: returning engineer/producer Devin Workman. After a year's hiatus, (not to mention two weddings - thankfully to the same girl - and a couple of trips to Germany) Devin came back to rock the good rock. Between Rob, Brian and Devin, there was still lots of Stud in Stud-io 59 this year. The studio has also had a few technical upgrades, including Pro Tools hardware and editing/recording software, a disco ball and mirrored ceilings. While adding more glitter and heat production capabilities to the studio (especially Devin), these changes have streamlined things extensively.

Cheers go out to all the campers that stopped by to record a tune or two and keep us busy. Thanks also to Mickey and Laura Morris, Forrest and all the maintenance staff, Sam Kuznetz and LSD, Bruce Smith and the Music Shed staff, Pub, and of course, Ernst.

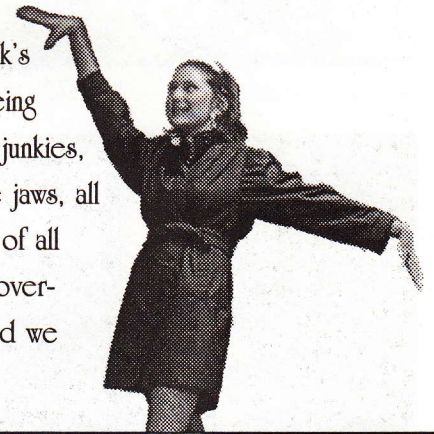

As they tend to get; the rock got rocked, the heat got beaten, and the squirrels got our insulation. We will be spending the winter in our other padded rooms, and will be looking forward to next year.

The drama queens and flamboyant Jews (otherwise known as the theatre CITs) would like to thank everyone for putting up with us, the world for existing, Buck's Rock Camp for letting us pay to work, our directors for being great, our JCs for being fabulous, counselor snack, power plays, sibling relationships, publication, the theatre junkies, advil, costume, coke, set, chocolate, LSD, chips, our stretched vertebrae and tense jaws, all that jazz, (we are tired and it is late and our brains are collapsed and can not think of all those amazing things that we want to appreciate), and of course, Ernst. We may be over-worked, under-slept, over-stressed and dirty, but this summer is quite the fabulan and we love you all. Thank you and goodnight. (large group bow)

The Night the Door was left open

Bryan forgot the power of protection that the door provided. Perhaps it was the alluring hum of the A/C, or the flicker of the computer monitor, but something about the shop that night caused a swarm of campers, like

By Rosa Jurjevics

moths around a floodlight, to burst in, throwing Colin to the ground

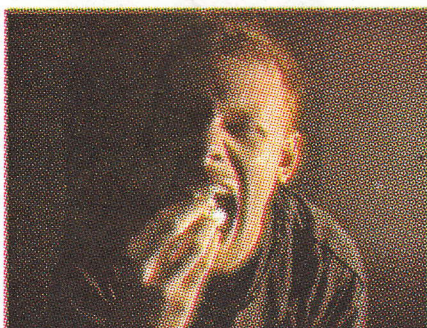

by Max Miller

They rolled in by the thousands, each with the same goal: "I want to make a movie but I have no idea what about! ...a script? No, but I really liked The Matrix, can I do that?" Bryan's head spontaneously burst into flames.

by Simon Fornari

Jordan was soon crushed by the onslaught of campers, just when he was about to finish re-editing his movie for the third time. Simon ripped his shirt off and joined the chaos. Rosa started ranting about a proletariat dictatorship and workers of the world but even revolutionary communism couldn't calm the masses. Max, mistaken for his beloved jerky-treats, was promptly devoured by carnivorous campers as Rosa ducked the cameras.

By Rosa Jurjevics

Batman came to the rescue© but was then pummeled by Ben Boas and his mighty newspaper.

by Jeremy Gooman

However diabolical, Ben could not stand up to the power of Jeff Ray Paul Bob and Rick when the fab fivesome did their Elvis impression. Later, we realized "Jailhouse Rock" had been the turning point. The crowd thinned, and was further decimated by Cheryl's scary black eye makeup. Any stragglers were sent to Karen in Pub for script advice. When the dust settled, the shop's vibes were cleansed by the Fury of the Aquabats!

- I. The Turtle
The turtle lives twixt plated decks which pratically conceals its sex.
I think it clever of the turtle
In such a fix to be so fertile.
- II. The Python.
The python has and I fib no fibs,
Three hundred eighteen pairs of ribs.
In stating this I place reliance on a seance with one who died for science.
This figure is sworn to and attested.
He counted them while being digested.

- III. Hyena
Hyena is the kind of beast
I'd not sit down with to feast.
He is appetite indiscriminating
And mindless laughter unabating
Slavering in the plush arena
The studio audience is mostly Hyena.

- IV. Hog
Some scientist may at last disperse
The mysteries of the universe
...But me, I cannot think
Why pork is white and ham is pink.

Bastille Day

July 14, 2000

Buck's Rock Camp
59 Buck's Rock Road
New Milford, CT 06776

Bastille Day 2000

Welcome to Medieval Times! That seems to be the catch phrase of the day...and for today, it's true. The CITs of 2000 have decided to celebrate the birth of the French nation by taking the camp back about 500 years before it took place. While our day isn't historically accurate, we choose to honor the medieval times by depicting the version we've grown up with in our storybooks, the "Golden Age" of the era.

This isn't a time of darkness, but that of the sword in the stone and the lady of the lake. So as the festivities continue throughout the day, follow the schedule and enjoy!

8:00 am - Wake Up

9-12am/2-5pm - Mask Making on the Porch

10:30 am - Archery Tournament

12:30-2:00pm - Gypsy Booth on the Lawn

4:30pm - Fencing Demonstration by Boys House

9:00pm - Costume Ball / Monty Python and the Holy Grail

HAIR

Directed by Bruce Ducat
and Jason Zimble
Assistant Directed by Sarah Schachter
Musical Direction by Erika Blumberg
Choreography by Charlie Sterling

Set Designed by Rich Dunham
Lighting Designed by Stephen Nichols
Sound Designed by Sam Kusnetz
Costume Designed by Kate Martin
Vocal Coaching by Peter Morritt and Tanya Brown

A Note From The Director:

At the risk of sounding excessively politically correct, we at Bucks Rock think it necessary to comment on the multiple drug references in our production of HAIR. The camp chose HAIR as a celebration of a time, places in our history, and indeed our lives. The play was not written, nor was it selected now, to affirm or otherwise approve drug use. Rather, its purpose was to celebrate the spirit of a time where in all of our adolescent fervor we pursued to question, to know and to experiment at all levels; all in the hope of gathering a clue about who we are and where we were going, and hopefully gaining some new level of awareness in the process. When you watch the Bucks Rock production of HAIR, try to remember the context in which it was originally created: a time where life for many of us was a giant cosmic "what if?" Enjoy. Peace.

Another Note From The Director

This year has been a tumultuous parade of life-changing events. I sincerely want to thank my cast of actors & the theatre staff, as well as the rest of the staff here at Bucks Rock, for their ongoing and moving compassion, support and love. I want to thank Jason Zimble for his friendship and extraordinary support in an extraordinary time of need. Most importantly, a very special thanks goes to Laura and Mickey Morris for their unflagging support, understanding, compassion and love. Were it not for their active and loving involvement, HAIR would not have happened and my eyesight would have been lost forever. I am eternally grateful.

DIRECTOR'S NOTE:

Thank you for attending an evening at Buck's Rock's Renaissance Festival. Tonight we will be featuring a production of the Shakespearean Comedy "The Taming of the Shrew". The cast and crew have worked hard to recreate the essence of a Renaissance festival atmosphere which, in addition to this featured production, comes complete with jugglers, singers, dancers and much of the other entertainment that you would expect to find at a Renaissance Festival. We hope that you will have as much fun watching our performances as we will have putting them on for you.

I would like to sincerely thank the staff for all the generous assistance given to help me get on my feet here at Buck's Rock, and the productions' designers and their crews who have worked so hard to make my vision a reality.

Les Belles ~ Soeurs

Revised Note From The Director

This year has been a tumultuous parade of life-changing events for me. I sincerely want to thank both of my casts who make all of this worth it, the Theatre staff as well as the Buck's Rock staff for their ongoing and moving compassion, support, and love. In particular, I want to thank Jason Zimble for his friendship in an extraordinary time of need, Joelle for her constant interest, flexibility, and concern, and the lovely Costume Kates for their incredible bedside manner. Most importantly, a very special heartfelt thanks goes out to Laura and Mickey Morris for their unflagging support, understanding, active compassion, and love. Were it not for their constant involvement, neither HARK nor Les Belles-Soeurs would have happened and my eyesight would have been lost forever. I am eternally grateful. And finally, of course Ernst for creating a place for all of these incredible people to be together.

Rest Hour 2000

original Rest Hour by Computer Shop '99
updated by Nat Budin

Rest Hour 2000 is an updated version of the game Rest Hour made in 1999 here at Buck's Rock. The newer version is Win 95 native, plays in higher colour depth, sports an easy to use installer, and is written in BRIL 2 (Buck's Rock Interpreter Language 2.) On top of all this, Rest Hour is the only Point & Click adventure game in the Expo.

Games Not Pictured Here

Buck's Rock 400 - (Lauren Schneider, Joshua Feintuch, and Matthew Blaszczyński) - Lightning strikes the Gong and the Computer Shop simultaneously, releasing the mystic powers of Fleen. Only by beating them in a road race can the Computer Shop subdue their wrath.

Froggy - (Ethan Feldman) - A side-scroller in which you control Froggy - you guessed it - a frog, who takes on a variety of forms to complete his quest.

Orange Man (Nathan Williams) - Jump, run, fly, and ride your own bullets to defeat the boss.

Fred's Quest (J.P. Stringham and Bryan Van Brunt) - Oh Bibbles! Watch out Fred, that cliff looks threatening. Indulge in Fred's Cartoon Quest.

"The" Schedule

9:00 - Human Compooper

A game where people play as people act as different parts of a computer and perform their respective tasks.

10:00 - Comp./Video H&T

A history and theory class on computers and their relation to film editing.

11:00 - Show & Sell

Displaying of games made in the shop. There will also be someone taking orders for the compilation CD (which contains all the games made in the shop.)

2:00 - The Pirates of Silicon Valley

An interpretation of the battle between Microsoft and Apple and the lives of Bill Gates, Steve Jobs and Steve Wozniak.

4:00 - Game Race

A collaborative race to see how quickly we can create a "Point & Click" game.

COMPUTER SHOP
2000

And now, a keynote address from Nat, at the close of which he hands out the customary free junk.

Good morning, everyone! I just flew in from New York, and boy are my arms tired! Hee hee, that one cracks me up every time. But seriously... On behalf of everyone involved, welcome to BRIE3! We've worked hard to make this day happen¹, and we hope you enjoy it. So, as they ask on Pesach (sort of), what makes this day different from all other days? Well, BRIE3 is a day to showcase the hard work of many campers at the Computer Shop this summer. At this event, you'll see just what we've been up to all this time, in that tiny little box next to leather. You'll get to see the fruits of the campers' labors. These campers have learned how to use 22nd-century development tools such as Bryce, TADS, The Games Factory, Poser, and many other state-of-the-art programs. Why is all this important? Because, ladies and gentlemen, these children are our future. Education is the key to America in the next century. And if you vote for me... wait, wrong speech. Anyway, here's the free junk I promised. It's a BRIE3 souvenir mouse pad. Just cut it out of the page. Now go enjoy the show!

BRIE³ Bytes Official Mousepad

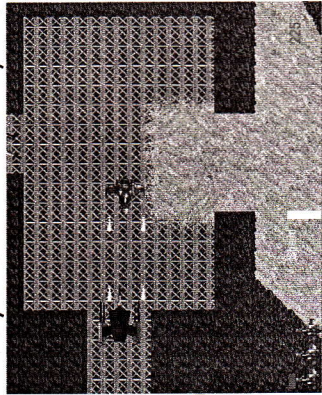

¹ Well, actually, this DAY would have happened whether we caused it to or not, but there might not have been a BR... well, you know what I mean.

Games Gallery

Epion

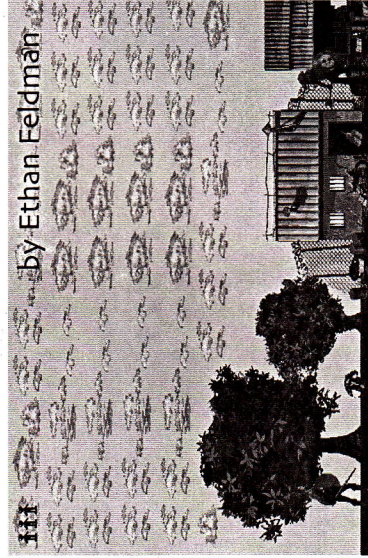

by Matthew Blaszczyński

Epion is a top-view scroller in which you pilot the "Gemini V" (a spacecraft of sorts,) through an underground maze

Time Warrior

by Ethan Feldman

Time Warrior is a side-view platform game.. most of the time... which places you in the position of Ethan, an ill fated warrior who has somehow managed to find himself chosen by the god of time to battle Magnemite.

The Adventures of Bill the Hedgehog

by Max Stein

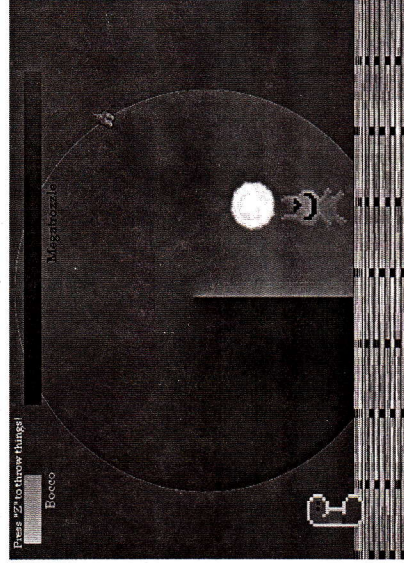

Yet another side-scroller, Bill the Hedgehog is a cleanly plotted game. You are a hedgehog who wakes up one day only to find out that a large spacecraft has crashed nearby and a bunch of meanlets have escaped. Of course, being a hedgehog, you have to stop them. Or something.

Bocco Chronicles (Lost Chapter 3)

by Joshua Feintuch

Sure, it too is a sideview game (and RPG in one level) but its original music (the only new game with this in the expo) compensates for the repetitious gameplay. The story centers around Bocco, a Keropianian, who is alarmed when one day the earth splits open and everyone, including himself, falls in. But why?

A Note from the Director:

Thank you for attending this staff presentation of "The Spelling of Coynes." I am grateful for the chance to put on such an entertaining play. This cast has worked extremely hard, and they have had many ups and downs, but they are excited and ready to bring you a wonderful show. I hope that you enjoy this experience as much as I have enjoyed putting it together.

Note from the Director:

This production has involved so many people. It would take pages to list each of you individually. I will, however, take this space to thank you collectively. I truly appreciate all of the props that you've made, borrowed, and loaned us. I especially want to thank Jason for going above and beyond the call to help; Erika and Charlie for making this all take shape and for being so great to work with; Anna, Laura, Sarah and José for some of the best assistance and attitudes I've ever had the pleasure to work with; the incredibly wonderfully talented Theatre CITs for always jumping in to help; everyone who shared their beautiful faith and culture with me (especially for those "Jewish interventions"); Rich, Chelsea and Richy for reminding me where my hope lies; and a special thank you to Laura and Mickey for being incredibly supportive, generous, and understanding- we dedicate this performance to you! L'CHAIM!

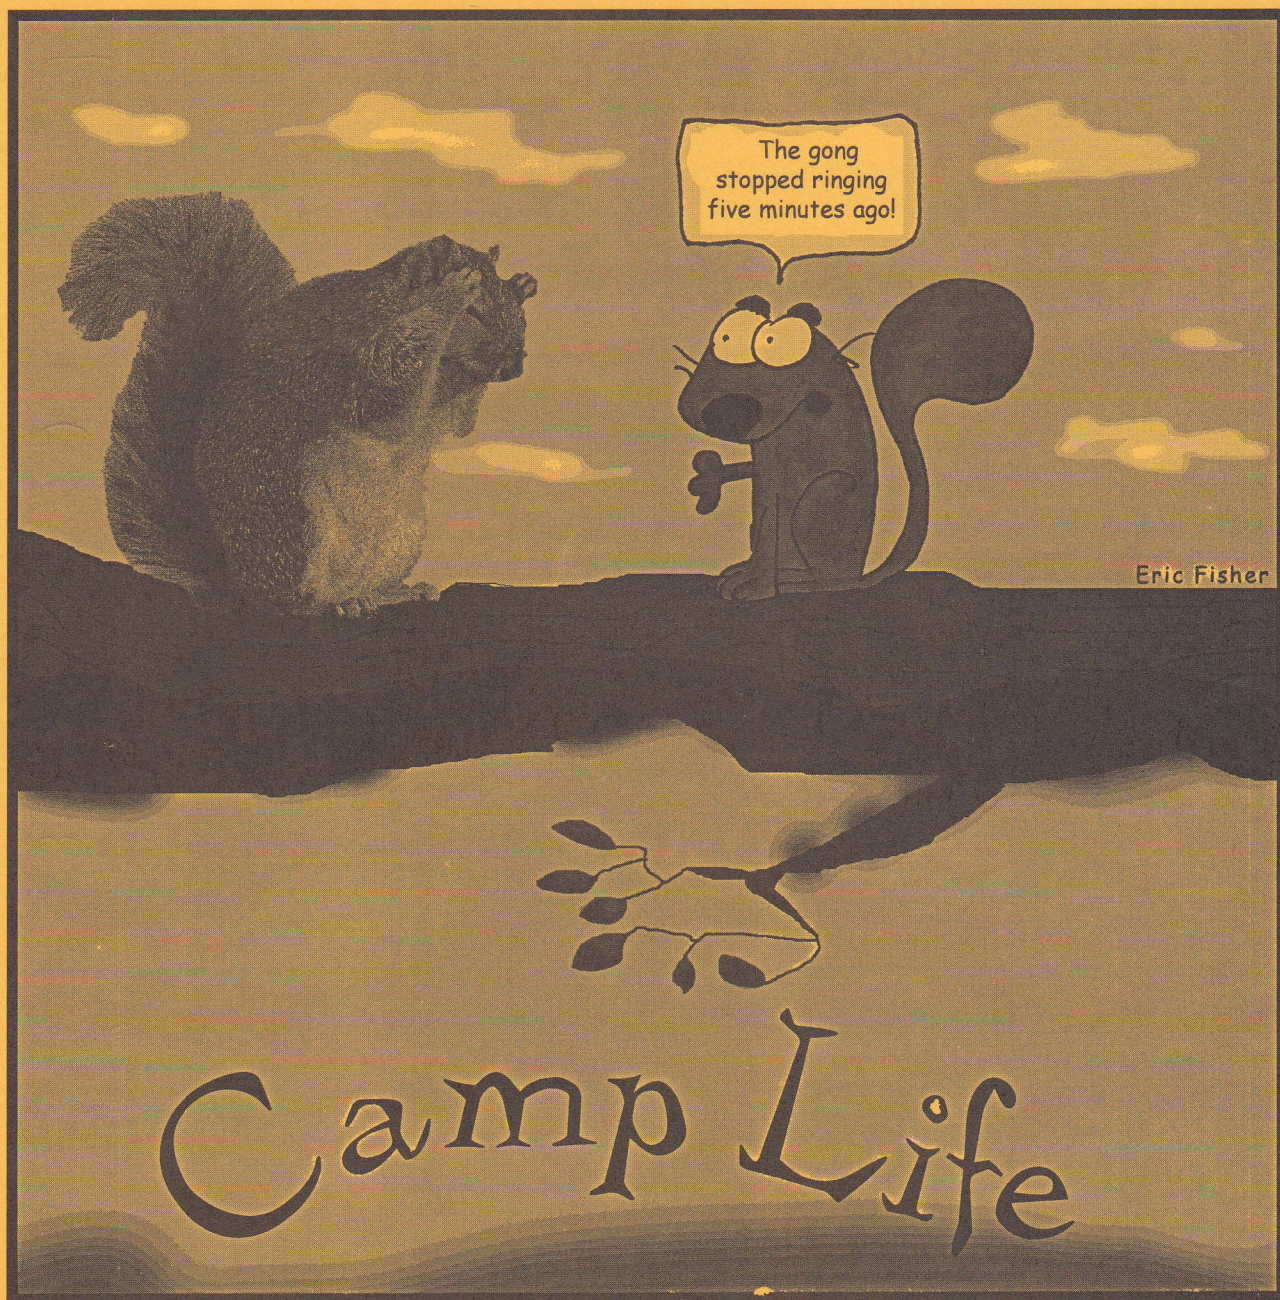

Special Thanks

Larry, Ernie, Bruce, Barry, the Theatre JCs and CITs, Music Shed staff, the Dance Studio, the Clowns, Rob and the Wood Shop, Luis, Ceramics Shop, Metals, Sewing Shop, Maintenance, Animal farm, the Office, the Kitchen, Video, Pub, any other shop who has helped that we missed, Jeff Sanzel, Lily Thom, our Jewish Mothers, GJNs (Generic Jewish Names), breaking traditions, matchmakers, the Evil Eye- Pshaw! Pshaw!, Russia, Fleen, Elvis the Alligator, Flea Markets, legal stimulants, Casey and Kristie, the Bergers, Laura and Mickey Morris, and, of course, Ernst, for giving us a place where we can celebrate life and hope.

Going Quackers at the Animal Farm

Come hang out at the Animal Farm,
It's better than a zoo-
We have ducks that quack and cows that moo,
Frolicking bunnies, filthy pigs and sheep,
A rollicking rooster, but no Bo-Peep...
Only three old goats, Jules, Lenore and Jen,
Some squawking geese and a big fat hen...
But above all this we have sunshine and smiles,
A magical carpet, and a ship that never sails...
At the one and only ANIMAL FARM
-so much better than a zoo,
Ducks go quack and cows go moo.

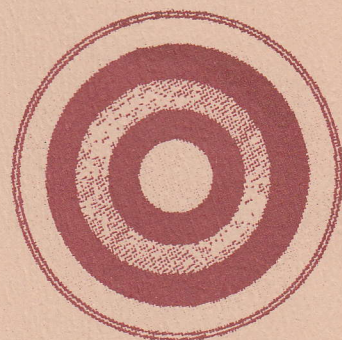

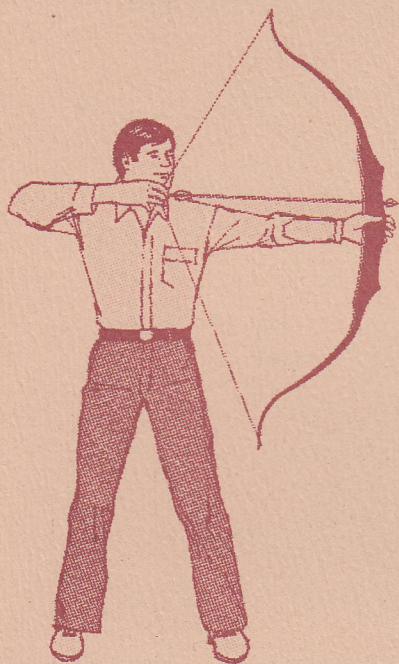

Archery

Down
by the cool waters of the pool and right next door to the peaceful Hilton Hotel lies the archery range. The instructor this year is Bob Schandle, who is a native of Minnesota. In the first session, before the rainy season began, there were oodles of campers trying out archery. A great many were able to hit the gold in their first 20 arrows. Those who came more often competed in a small tournament. No less than 6 campers named Josh spent time at the range... We are unsure as to the significance of this.

There are many staff

members who also enjoy archery, especially those from the Kitchen. They have so far restricted their aim to the targets. At the time of writing this, the second session is one week old (and so is the rain). There are many new campers anxious to shoot a few arrows and with a little weather luck, we'll be at

it again soon.

— Josh

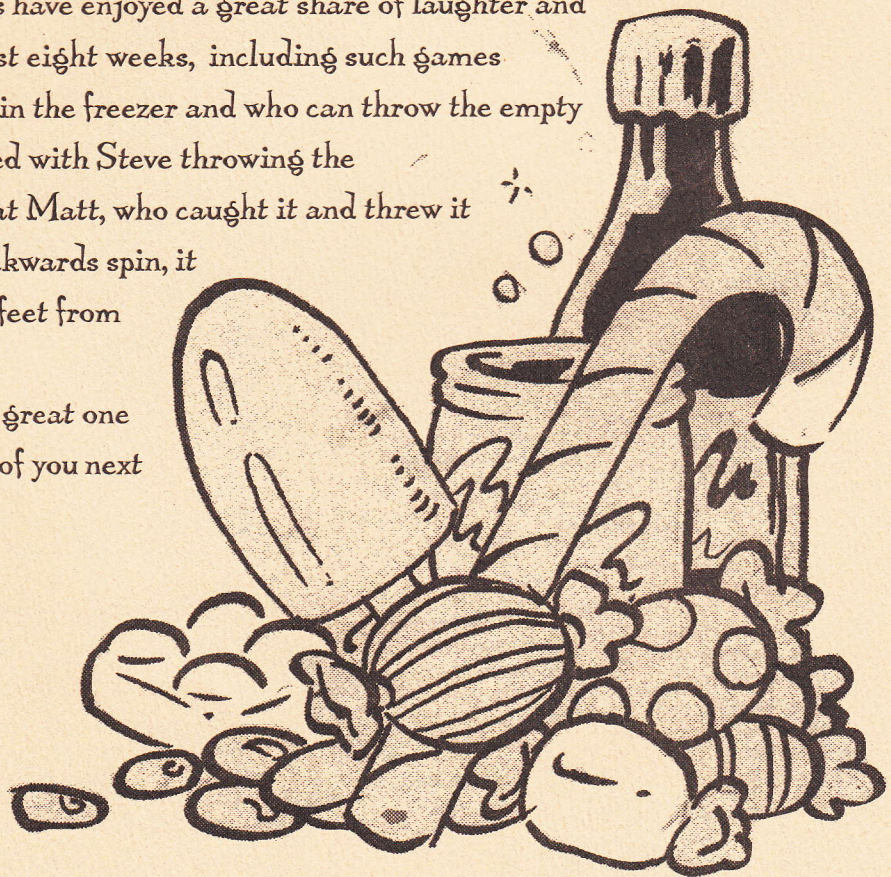

CANTEEN

This year's canteen, with its new leader, Steve Dicke, has had many changes. To start, the ghost of cookie dough ice cream has been replaced by some new Buck's Rock ice creams: S'mores Ice Cream Bars and Reese's Ice Cream Bars. A canteen regular, Blake Rosen, has shown us his love for Reese's ice cream by purchasing one or two every day. Our first try selling the S'mores ended in selling out of two cases in two minutes. There has been new great hit candy -- Swedish Fish -- as well.

The canteen regulars have enjoyed a great share of laughter and excitement over the last eight weeks, including such games as our name tag stash in the freezer and who can throw the empty box better. That started with Steve throwing the box perfectly straight at Matt, who caught it and threw it back with a sort of backwards spin, it landed clumsily three feet from where it started.

This year has been a great one and we hope to see all of you next millennium.
